

Procedure for accessing the Self-Paced Online Privacy Training Course

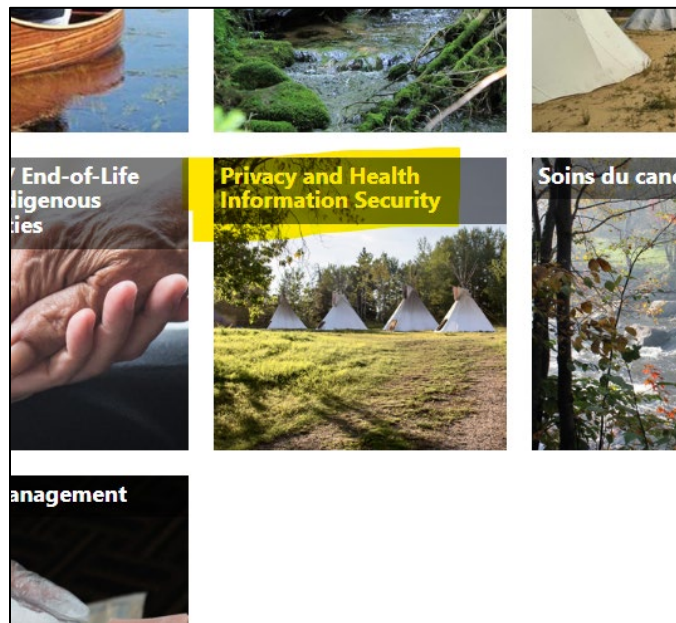

Introduction

The Northern Inter-Tribal Health Authority (NITHA) in partnership with Saint Elizabeth (SE) - First Nations, Inuit & Metis Program developed an online self-paced privacy training course. This course is recommended for all healthcare workers who access client personal health information.

The course includes a test with a passing grade of 85%. Upon completing and passing the course, you may download a certificate of completion. This certificate may be required by your organization to access electronic clinical systems such as the EMR.

To access the course, you must first self-register to create an account. Thereafter you may login and take the course at any time. You may also take the course in parts and resume where you left off each time you login.

- Click on the following URL to login to the site and then take the course:
